Our community has been somewhat stirred up recently, by the actions and brazenness of one of our "gay Lotharios," who evidently looks on all unprotected young ladies as legitimate prey. When brought to book the sentence received was the greatest possible for "common assault." It is thought that he deserves a more severe sentence but he will receive the exhortation of all who esteem virtue and reverence character. The young lady in question deserves and receives much approbation for exposing the baseness of one of the too many who think a well-filled wallet and a "popular" position in society covers a multitude of sins.

Grace, the little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. N. L. Dow, was taken very sick last Tuesday with what proved to be appendicitis. On Thursday night Drs. Hastings and Blake of Barton, Dr. Bailey of Craftsbury and Dr. Templeton were called in council and were met by Dr. Bell of McGill Hospital, Montreal. It was decided that an operation must be performed in order to save her life and she was taken to Montreal on the night train accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. N. L. Dow and a trained nurse from Woodsville. The operation was performed as soon as the child was a little rested from the journey. Word was received here during the day that she survived the operation but was very weak with little chance of being able to rally. Grace is an only child and the entire community is saddened. We await further news with much anxiety.

Mrs. Janette Chamberlain, wife of the late Samuel Phillips, who died at the advanced age of ninety years, was the eldest daughter of Spencer and Millie (French) Chamberlain, born in Glover one year before the war of 1812, and one year after the running away of Long Pond, situated on the boundary line between Greensboro and Glover. Her father was a soldier of the above mentioned war, and fought in the battle of Plattsburgh. He was also one of the principal actors in helping to cut the channel that caused the complete emptying of the waters of the pond, which devastated the whole valley from its bed to Lake Memphremagog. She was wont to relate many incidents which she remembered hearing her father tell of these thrilling historical events. In her death we have lost one of the connecting links between the time of dense forests, log houses, wild animals, and all the trials and privations of a new country; and the present prosperity and rapid improvements that have followed. Mr. Phillips' death occurred several years ago. This estimable couple were married in the fall of 1812. Four sons were born to them, the youngest of whom died in infancy. The oldest son, Spencer, was a soldier in the late civil war, and died while in its service; the two remaining sons, Alonzo and Franklin, live upon the home farm, and have tenderly cared for their mother in her declining years. One brother, two years her junior, is still living in the town of Spencer, Iowa. Mrs. Phillips was a woman of great energy of character, doing with all her might whatever her hands found to do; a true home-keeper in every sense of the word, holding the love and interest of her children and grandchildren above every other duty. She was of an inquiring mind, and took a deep conception of the progressive thought and activity that moves the world of today; she possessed a keenness of wit and quickness of repartee that was a proverb to her many friends. The cultivation of flowers, of which she was passionately fond, and the reading of her favorite poets, were her pastimes in her last years. She cherished a firm belief in the Larger Hope, and hailed with joy her release from this life when the last summons came. In a poem written a few days before her death, she says:

"At close of day she was heard to pray,
Why do I here make such a stay?
O lead me to my home on high,
A home that none can from me buy.
"Then the Angel the scroll unrolled,
to the call;
A loved one is at the open door,
You are welcome here forevermore."

The funeral services were held at the Universalist church, Rev. E. V. Stevens, assisted by Rev. E. W. Pierce, officiating. The many and beautiful floral tributes, and the presence of so many old friends and neighbors attested to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The finish is in curly birch and birdseye maple which make a very pretty finish. The floor is also of birch and maple. There are four rooms with closets on the second floor; the finish is in ash, elm and birch. The house has a bath room, is heated by a Murkland furnace and is a modern structure in every way. It is built in a very thorough manner. Twenty-six rolls of roofing paper were used on the walls in the endeavor to make it as warm as possible. It is well lighted throughout and will make a very pleasant residence. Two bay windows and two dormer windows with a veranda on the front and another short veranda on the back of the house add greatly to the appearance of the place. The house was built by Geo. Magoon & Son of Derby. The plumbing, which was very thoroughly done, was in charge of Geo. Chassee of No. Craftsbury; William Williams of South Albany was the master mason. The painting was in charge of Bert Gannon of Barton.

A lunch consisting of bread, butter, numerous varieties of cake, with cheese, chicken and coffee was served, after which the company dispersed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Lewis a long life in their new home. They were the recipients of gifts and money to the amount of $15.

A. E. Lewis, who lives in the east part of the town, has been building a new house this summer. It is 21x30 feet, twenty feet of which is used for a woodshed. The house is conveniently arranged with a large kitchen, pantry, sitting-room and two sleeping rooms below, and four good sleeping rooms and hall up-stairs. There is a cellar 18x30 feet with a good granite wall. Mr. Lewis commenced on the farm twenty-eight years ago and was obliged to cut away the trees before he could build the log house in which they have lived until they moved into the new house a few days ago. They now have an excellent farm with a good set of buildings. The barn is 42x52 feet with twenty-foot posts. The stable above the basement affords space for about 20 cows and a team.
